Moodboard

I started off this project with creating a moodboard in photoshop, using photos I found online. The moodboard also contains of some key words for the Blue note style which are: jazz, records, piano, notes.

Fonts

I'm using a mix of 3 fonts; Roberto sans serif, Helvetica Neue and Motiva Sans. I chose Roberto font family sans serif because it's simple and plain. I wanted the simple font to create a plain, easily readable content. I'm also using Helvetica Neue - bold and regular in this document.

Dictionary explains “blue notes” as a flattened note, especially the third or seventh note of a scale, in place of an expected major interval. Or a flattened third or seventh, used frequently in the blues.

It can also be described as a lowered third, seventh, or fifth degree of a musical major scale. A blue note is a microtonal pitch in between a note from the blues scale and a neighboring note from the major scale. The precise pitch of the blue note is up to the player. A musician’s approach to blue notes is a big part of what makes their sound unique.

In jazz and blues, a blue note (also “worried” note) is a note that—for expressive purposes—is sung or played at a slightly different pitch than standard. Typically the alteration is between a quarter-tone and a semitone, but this varies among performers and genres.

The blue notes can be determined in any key using the half-diminished seventh chord. Due to the fact that the half-diminished seventh chord is not commonly used like major and minor chords, you may think this approach is difficult, but it's relatively easy.

Colour Scheme

I decided on a monochromatic black/grey colour scheme. The same colour scheme as my moodboard, I wanted it to reflect the black and white original photos from that time.

I want to keep it simple and serious colours that will contrast with the bright posters and the style artwork.
